Tax changes rejected by townships

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

With a show of hands last Monday, Snowdon council made certain that Haliburton County won't see market value reassessment in 1991.

The township became the sixth municipality in the county to pass a resolution asking that the proposed reassessment be deferred in favour of more study and public input.

Haliburton County's chief administrative officer, Gary McKnight, says because of majority of municipalities favour a delay in market value reassessment, that will almost certainly translate into a similar outcome at county council.

Lakefront property owners have lead the crusade opposing the market value plan, and at Monday's meeting Snowdon councillors heard a presentation by the South Lake Association of Cottagers and Residents (SLACAR).

Municipal Affairs Director Art Lymer told council the association opposes immediate implementation of reassessment because not enough is known about the impact on property taxes.

"We're not for it or against it, we don't understand," he said. While concerned about a potential rise in property taxes for residents on South Lake, Lymer said

Three snowmobiles plunge into icy water

Man drowns in Halls Lake

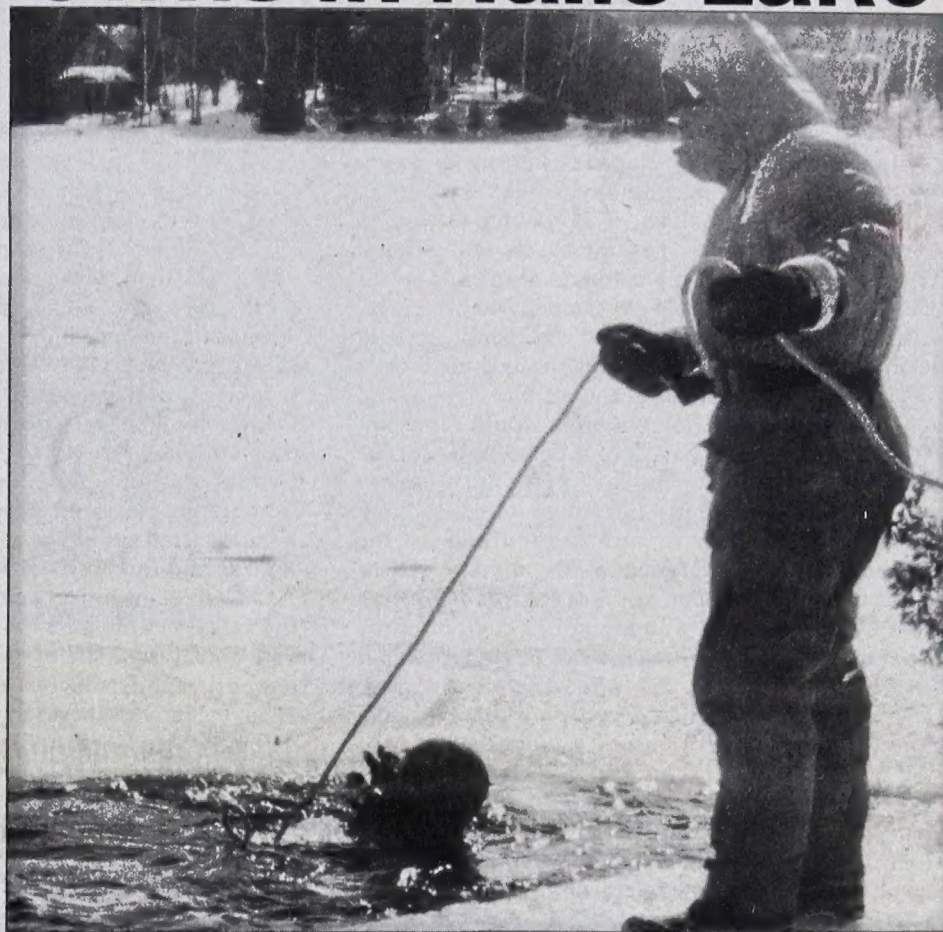

An American man drowned last week when his snowmobile hit open water on Halls Lake near the Kennisis river.

The victim, Stephen Bizub, 37, was riding one of three snowmobiles that sank into icy water on Sunday, Feb. 10 at about 9 p.m.

The other two people, a father and son, managed to get out of the water and were reported to be suffering from hypothermia.

The Stanhope Fire Department responded and set up portable generators and flood lights on the ice Sunday night. OPP divers recovered Bizub's body at about 11:30 a.m. on Monday.

The three riders were part of a group of visitors from New Jersey who arrived on the weekend and were planning to spend last week in the area. The survivors returned home on Monday.

In a scene repeated far too often this year, an OPP diver begins his underwater search for the body of a drowned snowmobiler in Halls Lake, where three machines sank.

Drainville is appealing Temagami jail term

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Victoria-Haliburton's MPP has been sentenced to one week in jail for his part in protesting the construction of a logging road in Temagami in 1989.

In addition to the jail sentence, Dennis Drainville was also ordered to pay a $750 fine by Ontario District Court Judge Robert Fournier in a Temagami courtroom last Wednesday.

Drainville has said he will refuse to pay any fine stemming from the conviction and failure to pay the fine will increase the jail term to one month.

"The judge made an example of me with a stiff sentence because I am an MPP. However I was not an elected representative when I took the stand and was arrested," Drainville is quoted as saying in a press statement from his office. "Considering the problems the courts are facing today, and the fact that some serious offenders are on the streets, I am somewhat dismayed by the harshness of my own punishment."

"After all, it was a peaceful protest to point out some problems in the way mainstream society is treating native people and the environment."

Drainville is appealing his sentence and was released on $10,000 bail after spending one day in the North Bay District jail. A date for the appeal has not yet been set and Drainville must report back to the jail on the day before the hearing begins.

Drainville was one of 228 people arrested in December, 1989 for blocking construction of the Red Squirrel logging road near Temagami. The protest was in support of native land claims in the wilderness area.

He was found guilty of mischief in December after being the second person tried in connection to the protest. Native leader Gary Potts was acquitted of similar charges.

By refusing to pay the fine, Drainville says he is continuing to stand in solidarity with the natives, many of whom could not afford to pay the penalty. He says it would be wrong for him to pay the fine to avoid a longer sentence while natives are forced to serve time in jail.

Ontario Premier Bob Rae says Drainville has the full support of the NDP caucus and called the MPP's acts courageous and conscientious. Rae says Drainville's sentence will not affect his position as chairman of the caucus.

Drainville has repeatedly said he feels no remorse for his actions and, if asked by the natives, would participate in similar protests. He said his sentence indicates an attempt by the justice system to isolate natives in their struggle.

"The judge is sending the message that natives can protest, but if any non-native supports them, they are dealt with very harshly," he said.

Sewer woes

Another chapter is being written in the never-ending saga of Dysart's proposed sewage plant expansion. The new NDP environment minister has asked for yet another water study.

Major decisions should be decided by referendum

This week's column is submitted by Keith Stata. Mr. Stata is a resident of Kinmount who owns a construction company and operates a cinema during the summer months. He says Canadians would get along better without the government ramming multiculturalism down their throats.

by Keith Stata

The Problems With Canada:

Canada is no longer a representative democracy! Politicians on all levels follow party line, and do not represent their constituents. Conversely parties have specific policies you may not agree with, but are forced to support because they represent the lesser of three evils. Perhaps, the new Reform Party can change that? Referendums must be held on all issues, on all levels. Abortion, Sunday Shopping, Capital Punishment, Bilingualism, The Young Offenders Act, School Closures, Tax increases, and Special Tax Levies etc. are only a few examples of areas where public opinion and government do not agree. The senate should be abolished, the people should decide, and their representatives should spend their time carrying out the will of the people.

In the long run Referendums would represent the decision of the majority of the people, and cut the costs of Government Bureaucracy which wastes untold dollars jetting around the country studying things to death, only to turn around and do the opposite to what everyone wants anyway. There must be less government, and less control of government by bureaucrats, who are not elected, but now run the government. The same can be said for small but powerful lobby groups who, to a great degree, shape government policy, but do not represent the majority of the people. Take on example, the alarming rise in crime in the country! Successive Liberal leaning governments have done away with Capital Punishment, watered down sentences, prohibited any form of work from being forced upon prisoners to help pay for their incarceration, refused to build more prisons, made the law favour the criminal, not the victim, brought in the Young Offenders Act, thrown cases out of court because it took too long to get there, muzzled the police at every turn, made no attempt to prevent known criminals from immigrating here, let killers out on day parole two years after a conviction, and then have the nerve to suggest that gun control will solve all our problems! Ideas like this may work in Fantasy Land, but not in the real world. Did any of these people ever notice you don't see very many one handed people in Moslem countries where they cut off your hand if they catch you stealing?

Forced Bilingualism and Multiculturalism, which are expensive, and tearing the country apart should be discontinued! People would learn to get along just fine, if the government wasn't always ramming something down their throat, until they rebel against it. Forced acceptance creates animosity, not harmony. We should treat people as we find them, there are good and bad in all people, and no amount of legislation is ever going to change that! Further immigrants to Canada should be selected on the basis of what is most needed for the country, and on the provisions that they come here to be Canadians, not to mould Canada in the image of their Motherland.

Canadians have traditions too! The contortions some people are going through to appease minorities, now range from the sublime to the ridiculous. What about the majority?

Government accountability is also another must. If the government wants us to keep out of debt and live within our means, so must they! If the government wants to create the G.S.T. to pay down the deficit, they should be forced through the courts to make sure that is the only place the money goes. If the Federal Government is going to control immigration, then they should be providing full funding to social agencies, and education departments who have to deal with them, instead of passing the buck to the local taxpayers. Some conditions should also be applied to immigrant doctors for instance, that they, for a specific period of time, serve in areas that have trouble attracting a doctor. If the Provincial Government is going to legislate programmes in the schools, they should be required to provide funding, both Capital and operating expenses, otherwise contentious programmes like French Immersion and Junior Kindergarten should be at the discretion of the local Boards and the taxpayer who must pay for them.

Canadians must become a user-pay society and the social net must be loosened somewhat. Welfare and social assistance should be there only as a temporary aid, not as a substitute for hard work. What incentive is there to work when the Government will build you a new house, and pay you to live in it? Medical Insurance should require payments from the people covered, and a nominal user fee to prevent abuse! Something that is totally free, creates no incentive for the user to treat it with respect. Thirty years ago many towns had outdoor rinks, kept up by the community, and if people wanted something, the community got together and did it. Today it has to be the very best of everything, funded by the government, with our money. The catch word should be use it, or lose it! Instead the catch-word is get a Government Grant! There are no grants, only taxpayers. It is not a God-given right that everyone have everything their heart desires.

Government should be funding only important things like, police, defense, transportation, education, hospitals, pensions, etc. Taxes should be reduced across the board. Funding for sports, the arts, culture, day-care and the like which benefit a minority of the population should be paid for by those people. If the government wants to inflict any of this on the Taxpayer at large, it should only be with their approval in a referendum! All spending by all levels of government should be tied to the rate of inflation, any increases, or funding of capital projects should be decided by the people in referendum!

It is not free trade that is destroying Canada, it is Canadian Greed, and incompetent government. How can Canadian Business compete, when they are expected to spend half their time being tax-collectors for government, or funding government mandated programmes in which they have no say? How can Canadian business compete with the interest rates, and the dollar as high as they are? If you had a factory in Ontario and paid $1,000,000 a year in property taxes, and had to look at increases of 20% a year to fund education that is out of control, as well as all the toys that people want, when you could have the same factory just across the border in the U.S. and pay $350,000 per year, with annual increases of 6% or less, where would you rather be, especially if you knew that the same people who want to see all that funding for their pet projects are the first to cross the border to take advantage of lower prices, or buy U.S. products at home because they cost less? Someone has to wake up soon, or Canada is going to become just another third world Banana Republic.

The Future of Quebec in Canada:

While it is certainly desirable that Quebec remain in Canada, the simple fact is that the decision is up to Quebec, not English Canada. The other simple fact is that if Quebec is to remain in Canada, it must be because the people of Quebec want to be Canadians, not Quebecers. Over the past decades far too much money has been spent in forced bilingualism, and a multitude of other perks aimed at keeping Quebec in Canada.

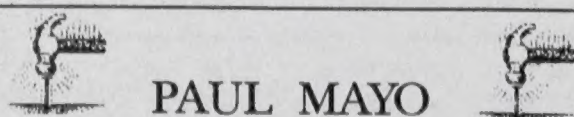

What precisely is Quebec's complaint? Quebec has one of the highest standards of living on the globe. It has its own language and customs. It has the best federal government building outside of Ottawa. It has controlled the prime minister's office since 1968, with only brief exception. It gets major federal contracts, often at the expense of other provinces. Quebec has operated at a deficit for 20 years. Last year it was $2 billion in the red. From 1961 to 1988 Quebec got $136.4 billion more from Canada than it put in. From 1980 to 1988 Quebec's gain was $95 billion - $1,600 profit per Quebecer per year! That is all from federalism, that Quebec politicians and media are so quick to criticize.

Recently Jacques Parizeau said that when Quebec separated, they would annex the portion of Labrador belonging to Newfoundland. But in the real world under the Treaty of Paris of 1763, which ended the Seven Year War, under the terms of the Act of Proclamation of October 7, 1763, Quebec would be just 15% of its present size. Now with all the talk of separation, what are the Tories doing? They are spending big bucks of our money to build the new National Archives in Quebec. So the real question is, not what should be done to keep Quebec in Canada, but who is looking out for the rest of Canada when they decide to leave?

It is most understandable that sovereignty-association is so widely supported today. The intelligentsia of the province have waged a relentless 30 year campaign to get to this point, as pointed out by a former Quebecer recently. The separatists gained control of Quebec's trade union movement, education system, and mass media many years ago. From this commanding position they have successfully bombarded the population with streams of propaganda, particularly the young, who are now coming into the majority. Look at how the Quebec media handled the flag burning last spring. As Hitler once said, "If you tell a big lie loud enough and long enough, people will believe you".

I don't really feel that there is any hope of

Province, union to negotiate ambulance contract

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Haliburton County's ambulance service will be the subject of negotiations involving the province, the township of Anson, Hindon and Minden and the Ontario Public Service Employee's Union.

The talks, scheduled to begin on March 5, will be based on the province-wide contract that the union and the province agreed to last week. The agreement covers 24 ambulance services representing 600 employees.

Currently employees of the Haliburton County ambulance service are considered employees of Anson, Hindon and Minden, the municipality which administers the operation. The service is one of only two in the province where the ambulance attendants are not directly employed by the Ministry of Health.

OPSEU has been trying to get local ambulance officers declared Crown employees. Because the service is completely funded by the province, the union doesn't think the municipality should be involved in negotiating contracts.

The union presented their case to a labour tribunal in December, but a decision has not yet been reached. Ambulance services in Haliburton County and Wasaga Beach are the only one represented by OPSEU where the officers are still employed by the municipalities.

Last week the province and union met for three days of around-the-clock negotiations and walked away with a contract covering all the ambulance services represented by OPSEU except Haliburton and Wasaga Beach. Because the status of those two services has not yet been determined, contract talks were postponed until March 5.

Union spokesman Frank Rooney told The Times that the labour tribunal will be asked to render a decision as soon as possible, and in the meantime negotiations covering the two services will go ahead.

Haliburton County ambulance employees have been without a contract since they joined OPSEU in June, 1989. Contract talks between Minden and the union broke down last summer and the employees have been in a legal strike position since November.

The union has decided to delay any job action until the outcome of the labour tribunal and the negotiations with the province.

Money was the key issue which prevented a settlement between the union and the township. The employees are seeking wage parity with other ambulance services in the province, while the municipality wants to keep ambulance wages in line with amounts earned by other municipal employees.

The agreement worked out between the union and the province last week will increase ambulance wages to $17.78 an hour effective April 1.

Ambulance crews in Haliburton County currently earn $12.40 an hour and Rooney says the union will be looking to negotiate a contract that is similar to the one reached last week.

"We'll be seeking the same deal," he said. "We believe in the strength of the agreement." While the union didn't achieve all its goals in the settlement, Rooney said they are very happy with the outcome. He said the central contract is the first step towards the establishment of a single province-wide ambulance service.

Until the tribunal reaches a decision, Haliburton ambulance crews are still municipal employees and Rooney says he expects the township will be represented at the negotiating table on March, 5.

If the tribunal decides in favour of the union and local crew are declared employees of the province, Minden will still administer the service as agents of the Crown.

Ministry forces further study for Dysart sewer

by Susan Grober

Dysart's reeve feels the Minister of the Environment must have been turned against the Haliburton sewage treatment plant project, because she's requesting further study before final approval.

"She's been briefed by someone very opinionated against the project," said Reeve Bill Davis at last Monday's council meeting. "I don't think Dysart's side is being represented."

Davis was "greatly disturbed" by a letter from minister Ruth Grier last month demanding an addendum to the municipality's Environmental Study Report.

"This project has been going on and on, and this letter seems to be more of the same," Davis said.

Grier states the ministry is concerned with water quality in the Kashagawigamog chain, and requires further reassurance the project won't be detrimental.

"Additional loading to this system of water through expanded sewage treatment works was not, in our opinion, satisfactorily assessed in your previous Environmental Study Report," she wrote.

She stated the additional report will require a comprehensive assessment of water quality. And the lake's capacity to receive additional loadings must also be addressed.

Construction funds will be considered when a Certificate of Approval has been finalized. The certificate will require engineering work, she wrote.

"We made it very clear this municipality is always interested in protecting the lake chain," Davis said council. "But the minister doesn't seem to be aware that was proposed."

Davis said members of council should meet with the minister to voice their ongoing interests in protecting water quality.

Councillor Murray Fearrey agreed, adding he didn't see the logic of Grier's request.

"There's a bureaucratic game being played here," said Fearrey. "The MOE funded our studies. How can they possibly say it doesn't meet their criteria?"

"It's doubletalk coming out of the central region from somebody who's pro-cottager, anti-sewage," Fearrey said.

"They're arguing with their own guidelines," said Deputy-Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater. "We don't decide what form the study takes. They decide."

Davis said he'd hoped to make an appointment with Grier at the recent Rural Ontario Municipality's Association meeting, but she wasn't there.

He said he'll send Grier a letter, as well as a carbon copy to Premier Bob Rae, "to discuss this on-going project since 1985."

Fearrey said the ministry has already approved the project, but continues to make changes in the agreement.

"They're denying us for another two years in approving the effluent coming out of that plant," he said. "There's not unanimity within the ministry on the quality of the plant."

Later, Fearrey joked that he had an idea of the reason for further delay.

"Maybe they're worried about the effluent the extra hospital beds are going to cause," he chided.

Resort owners angry

by Susan Grober

The Minister of the Environment is making decisions based on misinformation in stalling the Haliburton sewage treatment plant expansion and sewer line extension project, says a local resort owner.

Art Ward of the Wig-A-Mog Inn represents the resort owners who instigated the project, and said a recent letter from the minister requesting further study shows just how little she knows about the project.

"The scope of this project has changed significantly since it has been confirmed that the private resort lodge owners have withdrawn from the project," minister Ruth Grier wrote in the January 30 letter to the municipality.

"She's very wrong in stating we have withdrawn from the project — dead wrong," Ward told The Times. "There's a fair amount of assumption there. Her information is not accurate... We didn't withdraw, they changed the rules."

After two years of waiting, the resort owners learned the $7 million extension project finally received ministry approval last April. But, in July, they were told they couldn't expand until a water quality study is completed.

The resort owners have no intention of backing out of the project, but they aren't willing to pay for another report either, said Ward. "We would simply like to have an agreement as it was originally stated."

The plan was engineered and calculated to allow for expansion of resorts, said

Ward. And he doesn't see why the ministry should continually go back on its promise.

"I think it's a convenient way for the government to put the project on hold," he said. "They have no money to keep the schools open and the hospitals running. They are going to face an enormous deficit. I don't think there's enough in the public purse for this."

With tourism in a slump, the resort owners would be hard-pressed to come up with funding to hook up to the system anyway, said Ward.

If the project had started last year as planned, however, they could have gotten a good bargain on construction costs, he added. "It could have been a wonderful time. The longer we take, the more it's going to cost."

If Brad Bradamore wants to pursue development projects in Minden, he should accept the fact that he's going to have to play by the rules.

For more than seven months council has waited for Bradamore to present a site plan agreement for a commercial plaza he's proposed for Main Street, and for seven months Bradamore has claimed he's being discriminated against.

But the list of conditions imposed by the township seem more in keeping with good, sound development practices than they do a conspiracy aimed at stopping construction.

Council has been burned in the past by developers who present nice-looking plans and promises only to be left with unfinished projects.

As Minden Reeve Ray Moore said at last Thursday's meeting, Minden is finally growing up a little.

Bradamore criticizes the conditions set on his development plans as too stringent and more suited to large urban centres than Minden's small rural setting.

Is he suggesting that the residents of Minden don't deserve the same protection and assurances as citizens of larger cities and towns?

It seems to us that the guidelines set down by the township aren't designed to discourage development, just ensure that the development which does take place is feasible and well executed.

The decision to require a letter of credit, before any construction begins, is a sound method of making sure developers have the necessary resources to complete the work they set out to do.

If Bradamore is sincere in his intentions to build the plaza as presented, and is willing to honour the conditions set out in the site plan agreement, he should have no quarrel with presenting the township with proof of his ability up front.

Instead of looking for conspiracies where there are none, Bradamore should consider how committed he is to the project then work with the township to bring the plaza to fruition.

To boldly go where no one has gone before

Put three grains of sand inside a vast cathedral, and the cathedral with be more closely packed with sand than space is with stars.

Sir James Jeans

A wonderful commodity, space. As someone once pointed out, without space, all matter would be jammed together in one lump—and that lump wouldn't take up any room.

Of course, space is a very relative commodity. There's more of it between atoms of mahogany than between atoms of balsa. More on a hockey rink than on a chess board. More between residents of Tuktoyaktuk than between residents of Tokyo.

And there's Outer Space. These cold, clear winter nights are perfect for gazing up at the sky and rediscovering the real meaning of space. It's the same wide-screen extravaganza, unreeling night after night. Your grandparents watched it. So did Mackenzie King and Champlain and Shakespeare and Cleopatra and Moses and Methuselah all the way back to the nameless, heavy browed shuffling ancestors of yours and mine, huddling in caves, fearfully peering out at the nocturnal spill of jewels across the sky.

It's a very humbling experience, looking at the night sky. It's one of the few things mankind hasn't managed to alter or desecrate. I sometimes think that if our leader had spent more time levering his massive mandibles skyward and less time rolling dice in the back room, Canada might not be in the mess it's in. But politicians tend to cluster in cities, and light pollution makes cities the worst place to star gaze.

In any case, ten minutes of uninterrupted star gazing makes Canadian politics seem farther away than Jupiter.

I haven't managed to pick them out yet, but I

There should be no distinction between people

Editor:

The only thing "obvious" from Peter Hynard's letter is that he only wishes his viewpoint to be publicized.

I for one do not find Mr. Stickland's letters to be offensive or hateful but merely a Canadian expressing his opinion.

It's people like Hynard who insist on putting the word "French" in front of Canadians who aid the cause of separation.

The citizens of this country are Canadian regardless of their origin and nothing should be added to show any distinction.

No Canadian voice to answer Quebec's demands keeping Quebec in Canada. Even if Meech Lake had passed, the premier would have soon demanded more autonomy and power anyway. The country has become hopelessly ungovernable, due to the continual appeasement of Quebec. Quebecers have come to believe that they are entitled to the best of what Canada has to offer, and still enjoy independence. More troubling is that there is no Canadian Voice to say that sovereignty-association is not acceptable to Canada, since the Federal Government's power base is in Quebec. What needs to be done now, if Quebec decides to leave? Canada must dictate to Quebec the terms of their independence. These terms must look out for the interests of the rest of Canada, not Quebec. The interests of Quebec have had too much priority for too long!

Should Quebec decide to separate, then the following guidelines should apply:

- Much of the land gained from affiliation with Canada should revert back.
- Quebec will have its own financial institutions, currency, defence, postal services, etc.
- Quebec will accept one-third of the federal debt.
- Quebecois federal employees will be terminated without compensation at the date of independence.
- All pension and benefit payments from Ottawa will become the responsibility of Quebec.
- Canada will maintain a defended land link to the Maritimes, along with whatever other areas revert back.
- Any federal loans to Quebec companies, such as Bombardier, will be called at the time of independence.

The bottom line is that we cannot give Quebec what it wants because this is not in our best interest. We must take care of ourselves, regardless of the cost to Quebecers. Further no more Federal funding of any nature should take place in Quebec until they have decided one way or the other! If English Canada continues to follow its current path, Quebec will leave, and leave the Canadian pantry bare! None of the present politicians have come to grips with the reality of the situation. If Quebec decides to leave, who will look out for the rest of Canada? We had better decide soon or Quebec could achieve independence entirely on its own terms, and at the expense of the rest of Canada, which has allowed itself to be run by a ship of fools for too long.

If Quebec decides to go, maybe Canadians should lend an ear, and give serious consideration to these historical basics. Jonathon Carver's New Map of the Province of Quebec according to the The Royal Proclamation drawn "from the French surveys" and published in 1776, depicts the boundary to follow. And there is a bonus for both sides. Canada gets 85% of the land it gave Quebec, while Quebec gets all the Ottawa River, including the capital of Canada, where present-day federalism is mismanaged!

Beatles' rise to stardom is now complete

Understand there are four newly-named asteroids winging around up there. They used to orbit under the stunningly boring names of Asteroid 4147, 4148, 4149 and 4150, but astronomers in a playful mood decided to re-christen them Lennon, McCartney, Harrison and Starr.

That's right--the Beatles in Outer Space.
Sort of...loosely in the sky like diamonds.

It's not often you'll catch astronomers in a playful mood. They are, by and large, a solemn bunch. And if you ever want to catch them at their grim and grumpy worst, ask astronomers what they think of astrologers.

"Pure hokum!" they'll snap. "Utter nonsense!"

Astronomers have no use for a people who predict the future by eyeballing the arrangement of the planets.

Astronomers can produce roomfuls of data to prove that astrology and horoscopes are just a crock of moonshine--the problem is, most folks don't want to hear it. 1800 daily newspapers carry horoscopes on this continent. Editors claim it's invariably one of the most popular features. A recent Gallup Poll discovered that 55 percent of North American teenagers believe that the position of Venus vis a vis Saturn will determine their chances at the Saturday night dance.

And it's not just North American teenagers. In the East, politicians and businessmen regularly consult astrologers for help in selecting auspicious dates to launch new enterprises. In Korea, China and Japan, it's the neighbourhood soothsayer who gives the final nod for wedding days.

My favourite quote on astrology comes from a New York City detective whose job it was to bust fortune-tellers for operating without a licence.

"I've gone into hundreds of fortune tellers' parlors", she recalled, "and I've been told thousands of things, but no astrologer ever predicted that I was a policewoman getting ready to arrest her."

So I guess when it comes to astrology, you can be out down as suspicious.

But then you know what we Virgos are like.

Man put on probation for assaulting wife

The following cases were heard by Provincial Court Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in Minden. Rick Bagg acted as Crown Attorney.

Suspended sentence for domestic assault

A local man charged with assault, threatening death, and obstructing a police officer during two domestic disputes received a suspended sentence and two years probation.

On April 20, 1990, the 40-year-old man threatened his wife while throwing around furniture and hitting the walls of their Cardiff home with his fists. He was drunk at the time.

"He said he'd kill her if she had not moved out of the house by the end of the month," said Crown Attorney Bagg.

Later, police found the man sleeping in the living room. After he woke up, the man attempted to grab an officer's service revolver.

On January 27, 1990, the man punched his wife in the head and slapped her on the face. "It's been an ongoing problem for years," said Bagg.

Because the charges were laid more than a year ago, Bagg said he wouldn't ask for a jail term, as the Charter of Rights provides the accused with a trial within a reasonable time.

Judge Inrig ordered the man to take counselling for alcoholism and spousal abuse. Also, the man must be accompanied by another adult when he is in contact with his wife to visit his children.

Accessory to theft receives probation

A 21-year-old Haliburton resident must not associate with a man he drove to the scene of a crime.

Kenneth Kreller pleaded guilty to charges of theft and possession of property for an incident which occurred April 15, 1990.

Court was told Kreller drove Steven Barry to Haliburton Marine, where Barry stole a Sony stereo. Kreller then drove the man home.

Kreller's defence lawyer noted he never entered the building, and suggested one year probation. "His only error was in not leaving Barry," said the lawyer.

Judge Inrig complied, and suspended sentence. He also ordered Kreller to have no association with Barry.

Probation for breaking glass

Abstinence from alcohol is just one condition of probation a 25-year-old man faces after pleading guilty to mischief.

On January 15, Dale Christopher Coates was asked to leave the residence he had been staying at, and returned later in the evening intoxicated.

Coates tried to get into the residence through a bedroom window, and cracked it, said Crown Attorney Bagg. He then kicked the door to the residence and broke the glass.

In the courts

The total damage for both pieces of glass is $75.

Coates told Judge Inrig the window had already been cracked because of frost. He also said he only opened the window, which the complainant then closed, cracking the glass further.

The judge suspended sentence, and put Coates on one year probation.

Coates must take counselling for alcohol abuse, as well as abstain from drinking. He also must pay $75 restitution, and is ordered to stay away from the complainant.

Three months for impaired boating

A Minden man received a mandatory three-month jail term for impaired operation of a boat on the Gull River.

On July 1, 1989, Roy Powell, 33, was spotted by police out on marine patrol as he was speeding southbound on the river in Lutterworth Township.

According to the police report, the officers motioned for Powell to stop, but the man only slowed down. Eventually Powell put the motor in reverse, which forced the motor out of the water, and then in forward before he finally throttled down.

Powell then walked through the water to the police boat, where the officers noted he smelled of alcohol.

Two breathalyzer tests determined Powell had 160 and 150 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood. The legal limit is 80 mg.

Powell told Judge Inrig he has been receiving treatment for alcohol abuse, and hasn't had a drink for almost three months. "I'm trying to do the best I can," he said. "I know I do have a drinking problem."

Previous convictions include dangerous driving and impaired driving. "I know I've done a lot of wrong things in my life," said Powell, vowing to turn his life around.

"All my problems have been caused by alcohol. I've been intoxicated for 18 years."

Judge Inrig said he has faith in Powell's counselling program, and warned the man to stay with his resolution in order to avoid further problems.

Powell will serve his sentence intermittently on weekends. A two year probation order includes the conditions that he not consume any alcohol and keep away from licenced premises.

Also, Powell is prohibited from operating a vessel for one year.

Impaired driver gets minimum fine

The minimum $300 fine was imposed for a 22-year-old Minden man who had a low reading for an impaired driving charge.

Dwight Sisson pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and driving with more than 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

Sisson was found to have been impaired after his truck was stopped by police last September 15. Two breathalyzer tests showed readings of 105 and 102 mg.

Because these readings were low, Judge Inrig imposed the minimum fine and added a $35 surcharge.

Sisson's driver's licence was suspended for one year.

$350 fine for 'hardship case'

A 17-year-old charged under the Young Offenders Act faces a total $350 fine for impaired driving and driving with no insurance.

Last December 8, the youth turned into a laneway behind the Corner Store to avoid police situated at the corner of Highways 35 and 121, court was told.

Police found the car with the engine running and the lights turned off. A part bottle of beer had been thrown out of the car, and vomit was on the floor of the vehicle.

The youth had 125 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood, according to the police report.

Judge Inrig said he could impose a smaller fine in hardship cases under the Young Offenders Act.

The youth, who has been laid off for the winter, was fined $200 for having no insurance, and $150 for driving with more than 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

Fine for missing counselling

After a short trial, an 18-year-old was fined $250 for breaching his probation by missing three counselling sessions.

Michael Rowden was required to attend counselling through Kinark as a condition of probation last year. And, although he attended three sessions in September, Rowden missed appointments scheduled on October 5, 12, and 19.

Rowden told the court he was discharged from the program by former Kinark director Andre Breton.

"I had received a form from Andre saying everything was fine and I didn't have to go," said Rowden, who didn't have a copy of the form.

Breton took the stand, and said Rowden had agreed to change the time of the October 5 appointment from morning to afternoon. Rowden later called and cancelled, and didn't attend the next two appointments.

"I sent a letter saying he was discharged from the program for missing the final three sessions," said Breton. The letter was sent on October 23.

When Judge Inrig asked Rowden why he didn't attend the three sessions, Rowden replied: "No reason."

Rowden was given three months to pay the fine.

Gone to the dogs? No way!

Canadians find new sense of pride at international musher's event

by Susan Grober

The words which spring to mind when most people think of this past year in Canada are pretty grim: recession, GST, Meech Lake, and Oka.

But after recently parading behind a Canadian flag in an Olympics-type procession along with people from nine other countries, Snowdon's Steve and Val Loughheed can add a more positive word to that list. Pride.

On the weekend of February 9 and 10, the couple participated in the second annual world championship race of the International Federation of Sleddog Sports (IFSS), held in Winnipeg.

"The thing that really captivated me was the team spirit, as opposed to the individual competition," says Val Loughheed. "It didn't really matter how well you did, you were just proud to be a Canadian."

In the parade down the main street, Canadian participants wore red jackets, each emblazoned on the back with a large, white maple leaf, a dog sled, and the words Team Canada. During the races, this patriotism didn't die down, as each participant taped a Canadian flag to his sled, says Loughheed.

"It was the first time I've gone to a sled dog race where Canadians felt like a team," says Loughheed, whose husband is currently racing in Michigan.

"It was a wonderful feeling of closeness for all the Canadians," she says. "I just thought it was a wonderful spirit, especially with the bad political feelings we usually feel these days, especially about our prime minister."

The first international competition was held in Switzerland, and next year's will be in Austria. So there was a special sense of pride for the Canadians to have this fledgling event in their own country.

"It was great," says Loughheed. "It was a miracle that it ended up being held in Canada. When they first asked, I said 'No way, it's just too new.'"

But organizers of a French-Canadian festival in Winnipeg offered to take over. Sled dog racing had always been a part of their festival, so they just incorporated the international event with their usual activities.

Still, it was easier said than done. Especially when a week of bad weather forced organizers to move the main trail... 30 miles outside of town.

"It would have been like us losing our trail in Minden, and moving it out to Bancroft," says Loughheed. "They pulled it off beautifully. The only thing that could have made it better is if it could have been in Minden."

During the competition, the Loughheeds learned about different methods of sled dog racing, such as the Scandinavian method of pulka racing, where the racer stands on cross-country skis, connected to a flying saucer shaped 'pulka' with a bungee chord, and running up to four dogs.

"It's an amazing thing to watch, because these people are cross-country skiing at 20 miles an hour," she says.

Steve Loughheed, who qualified in the eight-dog class based on results from races last year, also learned about some of the pitfalls of racing against people from other countries.

Loughheed faced a language barrier after yelling "trail" to a team ahead, indicating the musher should slow down to let him pass, and found himself ignored.

"But even if they didn't understand, they would eventually catch on if you yelled it long enough, or from your tone of voice," says his wife.

Another problem Loughheed faced occurred when the leader of his team had to be taken out of the race because of a pulled muscle in his shoulder.

"He wasn't lame, but his shoulder was aggravated," says Val Loughheed. "That's our very best dog — he's laid off now for the rest of the year. The other leaders we have are not as strong-headed. Steve always kept catching teams, but the dogs wouldn't pass. Steve's got a fast team, but he needed better leaders."

Canadians entered in three categories, with a team in the unlimited class winning the gold, and the six-dog class winning the silver.

The couple didn't bring home any medals, but Loughheed and her husband are still new to the sport.

"We've been fooling around with the dogs for 10 years, and racing for five years," she says. "We're still learning. It's an extremely challenging, difficult sport."

They may be new, but they certainly are dedicated. Next weekend, the couple will race in North Bay. The following weekend they'll either compete in Kirkland Lake or Lagoon City, and then probably to Matheson after that.

"It's a really busy season, but it seems to go so fast," says Loughheed.

"You work all year with these dogs, then in 10 weeks it's over."

The Loughheeds have 20 dogs, and have taken special care of their breeding, diet, and exercise since day one.

Val Loughheed is president of the 200-member Canadian federation, and sits on the IFSS council, which was organized to bring participants in the sport together, and to get sled dog racing recognized as an Olympic sport.

The IFSS belongs to the General Assembly of International Sports Federations, a prestigious organization which Loughheed calls the "the gatekeeper to the Olympics."

It's difficult for some people to understand why this couple is so involved in such an unusual sport, taking time away from their jobs to travel across the country. But for Loughheed, it's simple.

"It's addictive," she says. "It draws a lot of addictive types. We're not alcoholics or gamblers, we're sled dog racers. It's a real healthy focus for us."

"For us, driving down to Winnipeg is a really big deal, but there were people who flew down from Norway," she says. "Now those are serious people."

Traveling certainly has been tough on the pocketbook, however.

"It's a really stupid thing to do, as far as money goes," says Loughheed. "We're broke all the time. I guess we could be really rich and saving our money, but we wouldn't be having any fun."

The Loughheeds brought their sons,

Jesse, 9, and Caleb, 7, to Winnipeg. The children have become familiar with traveling to the races during the winter seasons.

"Caleb was five weeks old when we went to races in New York State," says Loughheed. "With Jesse, it's been the same. They have little groups of friends all over because of the races."

The boys explain how the family names each litter of dogs. "It's by the alphabet," says Jesse.

The last litter was named for a theme which began with the letter T — Toronto. So, the dogs had names such as Sky, Dome, Argo, Leaf and Jay.

And what theme will next year's litter be named after? "Well," prods Loughheed, "it's the letter U."

"Underwear!" says Caleb, with an ear-to-ear grin for his mother.

The next pups will have names like Fruit of the Loom, Jockey, and maybe even Wonderbra. "I think we'll have fun with that," says Loughheed.

Jesse and Caleb met a lot of people at the Winnipeg event, which featured teams from Finland, Norway, Austria, Germany, Italy, France, England, Switzerland, Canada and the United States.

But what was most impressive? "I know the guy who won the unlimited race," says Jesse, proud to have associated with the Canadian winner of a gold medal.

Which proves Canadian pride can be widespread among generations. Maybe the country won't go to the dogs just yet.

Stanhope island rezoned over cottagers' objections

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The approved rezoning of Constance Island in Stanhope Township will likely end up at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing.

At last Wednesday's meeting, Stanhope council agreed to rezone the Kushog Lake island to Seasonal Residential, completing the process to sever the land into six cottage lots.

The application met with strong opposition from cottagers owning property on the east side of the lake, directly across from the island.

They said allowing severances on the island would endanger wildlife, add to congested boating traffic, reduce privacy and affect water quality.

Several of the cottagers were in attendance at Wednesday's meeting to present their objections to council. Anton Kosztyo said the waves caused by heavy boat traffic in the narrow channel between the island the mainland are resulting in erosion of the shoreline and the loss of trees along the edge of the water.

Describing the channel as narrow and rocky, Kosztyo said navigation will be made more difficult if docks are placed on the eastern shore of the island, protruding into the channel.

Development of the island would also endanger the loons which nest near the north-east end, he said.

Stanhope clerk Gerald Bain said the township had received a letter from the Ministry of Natural Resources asking for an environmental protection zone on the north west portion of the island to protect fish spawning areas.

requires a notice be placed on title of all lots stating that no shoreline or lakebed alterations can proceed with prior written approval from the MNR.

The Ministry of Environment sent a letter that said the north end of Kushog Lake can support the creation of 22 additional building lots without an unacceptable decline in water quality.

Marie Thomson, a property owner on the mainland, expressed concern about the effect that development on the island will have on wildlife. She asked that the environmental protection zone encompass the entire north shore of the island to protect an area frequented by loons, gulls heron and turtles.

Tom Thomson (no relation to Marie) and Gary Marquis, two of the people who own the island, also attended the meeting. Marquis said the five severances proposed for the 18-acre island are less than allowed. He said the owners of the island are severing the lots to give to their children.

"All of the people we dealt with, the MNR, Ministry of Environment and health unit, were all impressed with the size of the lots," he said. "We met all the criteria from everybody."

Many of the problems anticipated by the cottagers, including heavy boat traffic and water quality, already exist on the lake said Marquis. "We're not even there and we're being tarred and feathered. We look like the villains sitting here."

In addressing the concerns expressed by the property owners, Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis said the Ministry of Natural Resources is responsible for fish and wildlife and the Ministry of Environment is responsible for water quality and both ministries approved the development.

Councillor Fred Gardiner said the conditions imposed for development of the island are more restrictive than any where else on the lake.

Council unanimously passed the rezoning by-law and Kosztyo said he plans to appeal the decision. Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker suggested the owners of the island and the mainland cottagers should get together and try to resolve their differences to spare the expense of an OMB hearing.

Builder may wait for election before proceeding

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Brad Bradamore says he may delay construction of his Main Street plaza until after the November municipal elections.

Bradamore made the comment at last Thursday's meeting of Minden council. He was scheduled to present a site plan agreement on the development, but instead accused council of trying to impede his progress.

The township has asked Bradamore to supply a $51,000 letter of credit as insurance that he will comply to conditions on the plaza. Reading from a prepared statement, Bradamore called the amount required "exorbitant" and said council was inventing new rules just to block his development.

He said that he's considering abandoning the project until after the elections and added he's considering suing the township for its actions.

Originally council required Bradamore to submit the letter of credit before the site plan agreement could be signed. But at Thursday's meeting Chief Building Official Tom Hubercheck said the township's lawyer had drafted an addendum that allows Bradamore to wait until a building permit is issued before the letter of credit is required.

Although Bradamore's lawyer had received the proposed addendum on Tuesday, the developer said he didn't know about it when he came to council.

Councillor Lewis Stevens said because the township was willing to waive the letter of credit until Bradamore is ready to build, there should be no reason for delaying the site plan agreement. "We're not holding you up," he said.

Reeve Ray Moore said council had approved, in principle, the plaza project and that Bradamore has had since that time to prepare a site plan agreement.

"Where have we tried to screw you, or slow you down?" he asked.

Bradamore again mentioned the conditions he was being asked to follow but Moore said these were regulations imposed on all projects in order to increase the townships control over development.

"There have been some changes since you were by-law enforcement officer," said Moore. "We're bringing in things to get away from the laxness of previous councils. We've attempted to bring things into proper operation."

Councils reject tax changes

Reassessment will be delayed

he's also worried about the effect on Snowdon Township as a whole.

"As Snowdon does not have a great number of business or commercial properties, we feel that, in order to equalize taxation throughout Haliburton County, the tax burden would fall on all rate payers in Snowdon."

Lymer said there is a need for public meeting to explain the market value system and Snowdon council should only support reassessment if it can be proven that it will benefit a majority of residents in the township. "Perhaps it will be proven to us that it is a fair and equitable system and our present bewilderment will be clarified."

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons said municipal politicians have some questions of their own, specifically how reassessment might affect provincial grants to the townships.

On Thursday, Minden council also passed a resolution asking for a delay in implementation of market value reassessment. Fran Snelling, a property owner on Brady Lake, presented the concerns she has with market value reassessment. She said the people most affected by reassessment will be middle-income families struggling to afford a recreational property in the county and urged council to support a study of the impact on both seasonal and permanent residents.

Many people will not be able to afford lakefront properties if the reassessment is adopted, she said and expressed concern about the economic impact on the township and county if cottage development declines.

Minden Reeve Ray Moore said he opposed a market value system while serving on council in Muskoka but a majority of councillors felt it was the only fair way to collect taxes and approved the reassessment.

He said the current system has created many inequalities in property taxes which market value assessment might help address.

But Snelling said the proposed system would not make the tax assessment any fairer. "Why change a system that is unequal and unfair to another system that is unequal and unfair," she said.

Minden council voted unanimously to support a delay in the system.

Associations claim victory

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The decision by local municipalities to delay implementation of the market value reassessment is being hailed as a victory by cottage associations.

"We're very pleased," said Glen Bohman, a Gull Lake cottager who is president of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations (FOCA). "We didn't want the county to rush into anything. The delay gives everyone time to know what we're getting into."

The proposed market value reassessment is expected to result in large increases in the amount of taxes paid on lakefront property. Cottage associations mounted a strong lobby against the move during the last two months.

They undertook a letter writing campaign urging councils to delay the plan and made representations at meetings. Some threatened to try and defeat any councillor voting in favour of reassessment during the municipal elections in November.

Bonham says he believes these efforts contributed to the decision to hold off on the changes. "I hope it had an effect, I think it did," he said. "We put a lot of effort into it and informed people."

Market value reassessment is not strictly an issue for season residents, Bonham said. He knows of permanent residents owning lakefront property who also became involved in the campaign.

A majority of municipal councils have now passed resolutions asking that reassessment be delayed so there can be more study to determine the impact on property taxes. County Council will discuss the issue at this Wednesday's meeting.

Victoria County trustees decide to pursue recovery of legal costs

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Victoria County Board of Education will continue trying to collect legal costs from 14 residents who fought the closing of five northern elementary schools.

At a meeting of the management committee last Wednesday, trustees voted by a 8-6 split to maintain their policy of trying to collect about $15,000 from members of Save Our Schools (SOS).

For eight years the SOS committee fought a school board decision to close elementary schools in Norland, Kinmount, Burnt River, Cobocok and Kirkfield in favour of two larger replacement schools.

The final defeat for the group came at the hands of the Ontario Supreme Court, which decided in favour of the board of education. The court also awarded the board the right to recover a percentage of its legal costs from the 14 individuals who initiated the suit.

Two weeks ago, Norland resident Laura Janke, one of the members of SOS, appeared before the board and asked trustees to forgive the penalty. The board deferred the decision to the management committee.

At Wednesday's committee meeting, Lindsay trustee Alex Istchenko table a resolution that the board continue to seek costs from the SOS members.

Woodville trustee Sharon Somers presented an amendment to Istchenko's resolution that would have put a $10,000 limit on the amount of costs the board would seek.

Somers's motion was defeated and the committee, made up of all the trustees on the board, passed Istchenko's resolution by an 8-6 vote.

Trustees who supported the action, said they felt they had an obligation to Victoria County tax payers to recover some of the money spent during the legal battle with SOS.

Because the court had awarded the board the right to recover costs, they said not collecting the money would be like throwing money away.

Lawyers representing the school board and SOS are in the process of trying to determine exactly how much money the board is entitled to collect from the 14 individuals.

Of the six trustees who opposed the motion to recover legal fees many said the board should forget the issue or risk creating more ill-will among the communities in the north of the county.

They fear that continuing to seek legal costs will cause people in the north to rally around the SOS.

One board member, Bonnie Kennedy from Lindsay, proposed a compromise solution. She suggested that the board collect $100 from each of the 14 SOS members and use the money to establish Home and School associations at the two new schools. This suggestion was rejected.

In an interview on Saturday, Janke said she was not too surprised by the committee's decision. She said the fact that six trustees had voted to abandon recovery of costs was positive, but she had hoped for more sympathy.

"It's obvious they're not prepared to change their minds," she said. "They have a sore spot about the people from the north."

Kennedy's proposal at least showed signs of compromise, said Janke, and personally she would have been willing to accept it.

The 14 SOS members who brought the suit were chosen because they all qualified for legal aid to pay the group's lawyer fees. Janke says none of the members can afford the costs sought by the board of education.

She said there's a possibility that the SOS committee may have to re-activate in order to plan fund raising to cover the costs.

In the meantime, Janke says they may try to collect names on a petition to present to the board at their next meeting to try and demonstrate to the trustees how much support for the SOS there is among residents of the northern communities.

Whatever happens with the legal costs, Janke says she's done trying to fight the closure of the schools in light of the court's ruling. "I'm not about to lie in front of a bulldozer," she said.

She feels the board's decision to recover some of their legal costs has more to do with making an example of the SOS committee and less to do with money. "They want to slap our wrists and hold us down," she said.

Redmen season ends as Fenelon Falls prevails

Kyle Hewitt scores four Redmen goals

It may have been the final game of the season for the Redmen last Wednesday, but for one player it was perhaps the most outstanding game of his lifetime.

The Redmen lost to Fenelon Falls Falcons 6-4. This being the second loss in a best of three series, the curtain closed on another hockey year for the local high school team. (The Redmen had lost 3-1 Tuesday afternoon in Fenelon). However, it was a night to remember. Kyle Hewitt scored all four goals for the Redmen. He scored one in the first, two in the second and a single in the third.

Hewitt opened the scoring at 5:27 of the first period. The only goal of the opening frame drew assists for Shawn Perrin and Corbie Kent.

John Vuksic picked up the assist on Hewitt's first goal of the second period at 11:14. Fenelon notched two to even the match, scoring at 10:51 and 7:53. The Redmen moved ahead once again before the period ended, with a picture-perfect goal at 7:23. Vuksic grabbed the puck at center ice and broke free of the pack. Racing past the one lone defender, he drove deep into the Falcon end, finally turning and passing the puck past the defenceman to Hewitt who flipped it over the Fenelon goaltender to complete his hat-trick.

Fenelon scored two more heading into the third period at 12:02 and 10:45. They held the lead until the 3:12 mark when Hewitt capped off his night with goal number four. The assist went to Corbie Kent.

With the teams tied, both teams turned up the steam. At the 32 second mark, Fenelon managed to slip the puck past the HHSS goaltender to take the lead. The win and series was wrapped up when, nine seconds later, the Falcons scored the insurance marker.

It was a very fast-paced wide open game which tested the skills and agility of both netminders. End to end plays, goal mouth

Kyle Hewitt, number 18, celebrates his first goal of the Wednesday night HHSS Redmen play-off game against Fenelon Falls. Little did Hewitt know at the time the evening would be his. He scored all four goals for the Redmen. Despite his outstanding effort, the local team went down to a 6-4 defeat which ended the Redmen season.

scrambles, missed opportunities and a heartbreak finish provided one of the most entertaining high school hockey games of the year. It may have been the Redmen's last for this season, but they closed the year with a roar rather than a whimper. Despite the final score, and the play-off outcome, the coaches, players and team officials can be proud of the season and, in particular, the exciting finish.

Coach Ron Yake had nothing but praise for the Redmen. "It was an excellent team," he said after the final game. "Improvement is the word to best describe what we accomplished this year." He noted that as the season went on the team came together as a unit. "They were a pleasure to coach!"

Yake said next season would be another building year for the squad as a number of key players will be moving on. Among these leaving will be Shaun Perrin, John Vuksic, Philip Johnson and Kyle Hewitt.

"It was a great last game," Yake said, referring to the quality of play. "The guys gave it all they had. We should have won that one." "The season just ended too soon," he concluded.

Oakwood overpowers Minden

by Lisa Bagshaw

On Thursday, February 14, the Minden OMHA Pee Wees hosted a very powerful and determined Oakwood.

The play went from one end of the ice to the other with both goalies receiving several shots on net, but it was Minden's Curtis Fielding who opened the scoring at 5:47 in the first period when he slipped the puck just inside the corner of the opponent's net.

There were no more goals to be seen in the first period and it was late into the second before Oakwood was able to tie the game. At 0:01 left in the second, Oakwood managed to score once more to make the score 2-1 going into the third.

Minden was unable to hold the overpowering Oakwood back in the third period and allowed five more goals to slip by their net. The final score was 7-1 in Oakwood's favour.

On the previous Friday,

Minden travelled to Woodville. They lost by a large margin and found it to be an extremely rough game.

Tri-County Pee Wees find play-off success

In the first game of the playoffs Minden Tri-County Pee Wees travelled to Haliburton for a game Friday night, February 8. Minden was without three regular forwards for this game and were definitely a little rusty.

Todd Redgrave opened the scoring at 4:04 when he banked a shot off the Haliburton defenceman and the Haliburton goalie.

Benjie Crego made it 2-0 on an unassisted goal at 2:52, and with just 16 seconds remaining in the first, Marty Dettman picked up a deflected pass to go in and score unassisted, at a nearly impossible angle.

The second period saw just one goal when Paul Murry jumped on a Travis Willison pass and scored Minden's fourth goal.

The third period saw Todd Redgrave scoring at 14:17 on a great pass from Marty Dettman. Haliburton scored two back to back goals at 14:05 and 4:29 to narrow the gap 5-2 for Minden.

Hair-raising game

The high-jinks of the Haliburton Winter Carnival got off on a fun-filled start Friday night as the NHL Old Timers squared off against a local team of seasoned veterans. Carl Brewer of the visiting team delighted the crowd when his hairpiece came flying off to reveal his gleaming pate. Haliburton player, and former NHL star Walt McKechnie promptly parked the errant rug in the goalie's net. See next week's paper for more coverage from the carnival.

Omeme team beats Minden Novice A

There was only one game for the Novice "A" hockey team in the past two weeks. On February 5, the team from Omeme travelled to Minden to defeat our boys 2-1. Omeme dominated the first half of the game and thanks to our defence of Trevor Woods, Trevor Cole, Richard Brohm and Jason Scott, they were unable to score more than 2 goals.

Forward lines of Greg Kerr, Michael Hamilton, Colin McKenzie, Dan Nielson, Josh Shaw and Paul Daniels tried their hardest and finally, late in the third period, Paul Daniels scored assisted by Dan Nielson. A great game for goalie Shane Walker!

We are hoping with their break for two weeks that the boys will be well again and resume their winning ways.

The team and parents would also like to thank Andy McKenzie and his sponsors for the great weekend in Toronto. Also, thanks to coach Barry Shaw, Brian Shaw and Peter Brohm for taking the boys Friday evening and putting up with them until the arrival of the parents Saturday afternoon. A great weekend was had by all!

nice pass from Benji Crego to finish the scoring. Final score, Minden, 6 - Haliburton, 2.

Minden Tri-County Pee Wees hosted Bobcaygeon Tuesday evening February 12 for the second playoff game. The first period ended

1-0 for Minden on a goal by Bobbi Griffin on a nice pass from Todd Redgrave at 1:47.

In the second period Andrew Crego was set up by Todd Redgrave on a pretty play at 8:35. The third period saw Minden go ahead with Bobbi Griffin scoring at 11:06 on a pass by Andrew Crego. Minden went into early hibernation, with Bobcaygeon scoring back to back goals. Monarchs held on for a 3-2 win.

Beaverton comes to Minden tomorrow on Tuesday, February 19. Game time: 8 p.m.

Oshawa foursome wins seniors' bonspiel

Annual event is a big success

Sixteen teams took part in the ninth annual Valu-mart bonspiel hosted by the Minden Senior Men's Curling Club last Tuesday. Frank Kitchen's rink from Oshawa came away with top prize in the two-draw tournament. A rink from Orillia, skipped by Jim Plumtree, won the second draw and came in second overall, just behind Kitchen in total points.

Winners took home prizes of meat donated by Eastons' Valu-mart.

League-leaders dominate first round of Men's League play-offs

The opening play-off games in the Minden Men's Hockey League offered little in the way of surprises.

In the first game of last week's round-robin play, second place Sid Stamp Fuels edged out third place Hartwick Construction by a score of 8-6.

Stamp's starting line put the team on the board in the first period when Craig Crowe scored followed by line-mate Lou Reynolds.

Hartwick's Scott Hamilton answered with a goal of his own, assisted by Dave Pettes, and then tied the game at 2-2 with a second, unassisted point.

Stamp regained the lead on a goal by Ivan Ingram, who had also been in on each of the two previous points.

The second period saw the two teams trade goals as Reynolds potted his second of the game, followed by Hartwick's Wayne Dickenson. Ingram added to the Stamp margin but Eldon Bull brought Hartwick back within one point.

Hartwick's Hamilton

rounded out a hat-trick and pulled his team even with Stamp at five goals each. But Stamp poured on the steam as Ingram scored his third of the night, followed by Glen Hall and Crowe to give the team a three goal lead.

Hartwick could manage only one more goal by Scott Dobie before the final whistle and Stamp claimed the 8-6 victory.

In the second game, Home Hardware showed why they've lead the league since the beginning of the season as they dominated the Rockcliffe Tavern team in an 8-2 game.

Rockcliffe enjoyed a brief lead in the opening minutes of the contest as Sid McKeighan hit the twine first. But Home opened the flood gates with an offensive display and scored six unanswered goals, three of them by Dave Rogers, two by Jeff Stamp and a single by Barry Boice.

Jeff Howe managed to break the Home tide by scoring one more goal for Rockcliffe but Rogers capped off the night with his fourth goal to lead Home Hardware to an 8-2 win.

The third game offered the only hint of upset as Westside Jug City, a team that scored only three games during the regular season and finished in last place, put together a team effort to beat The Times 8-6.

As in the Home/Rockcliffe game, The Times showed that scoring first is not necessarily an advantage. Greg Newell's opening goal gave way to four from Westside shooters Dean Hewitt, Garry Harrison, Bart Hilhorst and Dave Hartwick.

The Times managed to even out the play by the third period and pulled to within one point, but Westside kept pace and hung on for the win.

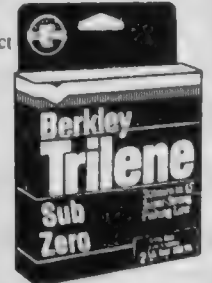

Adding to the Westside total were Derek Allison, Hewitt with two more and Hilhorst with his second of the night. Scoring for The Times were Doug Allison, Lawrence Lougheed, and Scott Nesbitt.

The cost of mailing out of town subscriptions is about to go through the roof!!

As a result of postal rate increases announced in December, and effective March 1, 1991, the cost of mailing subscriptions to readers beyond a 65 kilometer radius of Minden will increase dramatically. (For example, the cost of mailing last week's edition, under the new rate structure, will be close to 600% more.) The increase is so large that THE TIMES will be unable to absorb the impact. Therefore, we are forced to add a $20 postal surcharge to all subscriptions purchased by readers in Canada outside the 65 kilometer zone.

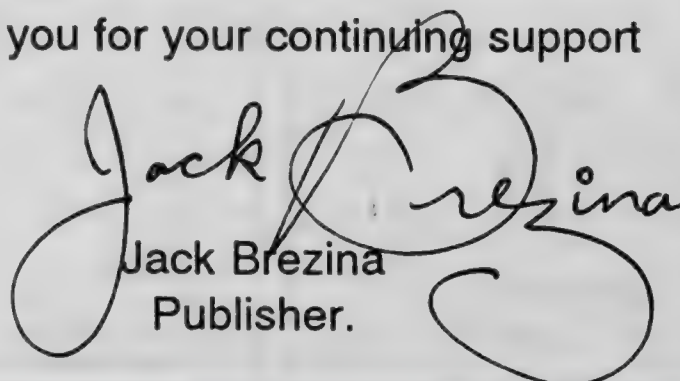

THE TIMES and our provincial and federal newspaper associations have been lobbying the federal government to delay this massive increase, or at least phase it in over a longer period to allow the industry time to adjust. However, at this time it would appear Canada Post intends to implement this new policy March 1 and so our only recourse is to impose the surcharge to cover the increased costs.

We apologize to our readers who will be affected by this surcharge.

Readers within the 65 kilometer radius of Minden, which includes most of Haliburton County, will not be affected by this additional surcharge. THE TIMES will also honour all subscriptions purchased at previous rates.

THE TIMES feels this increase in postal rates is too large, is being introduced too quickly, and at a time when economic forces are already creating uncertainty. The surcharge will particularly affect the many cottage owners who subscribe to THE TIMES to keep up with news from this area. If you feel this rate increase is unfair, please write your Member of Parliament and the Minister responsible for the post office, Harvie Andre to voice your concern.

Thank you for your continuing support

Developer claims council is blocking new plaza said council was not targeting Bradamore with the conditions. He mentioned previous instances where developer have "promised the moon" but the township had to go in and do work that was supposed to be the developer's responsibility.

Having been told that the township will waive the letter of credit until a building permit is applied for, Bradamore then took issue with the amount of $51,000, which he called ridiculous.

The letter of credit is required to insure a developer carries out property improvements like paving parking lots, installing a storm sewer system and building adequate entrances to the project. If the developer fails to do the work, the township can use letter of credit and do the work itself.

"Every development has to have it," said Moore. "If you don't perform the work, council has recourse to get the job done."

"It happens all over the country, Minden, is just growing up a little bit."

Councillors expressed frustration that Bardamore has not yet presented a site plan agreement after meeting with council on three separate occasions. "If you don't have the site plan agreement, we don't have anything to discuss," said Maher.

Bradmore left the meeting saying he's being forced into waiting to deal with a new council.

"I've just made my decision to run again," said Maher.

Impaired driving charge dismissed because of questionable demand

An impaired driving charge against a Scarborough man involved in an accident last year was dismissed on Wednesday.

Gary W. Wagner, 26, appeared before Provincial Court Judge George Inrig in Minden for a charge of driving with more than 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood last May 26.

Wagner and three others were injured after their car went off Highway 121 near County Road One and into a pond.

After being dispatched at 1:13 a.m., Constable Mark Lund investigated the incident and spotted a Molson Canadian beer case floating near the vehicle. He also helped the accident victims into an ambulance.

At 2:14, Lund reached Minden Hospital and talked with Wagner, who identified himself as the driver.

Lund said Wagner had blood covering his face because of a severe cut to the head. Lund also noted a slight odour of alcohol, and said the man had bloodshot eyes.

At 2:22, Lund demanded a blood sample to determine Wagner's alcohol level, and later advised Wagner he may be charged with impaired driving.

When questioned by Wagner's defence lawyer, Lund said he couldn't recall what questions he asked before demanding the sample, and had nothing in his notebook about the nature of their conversation in the treatment room between 2:14 and 2:22.

After a recess, Judge Inrig dismissed the matter, saying "the Crown feels there are problems with the reason for the demand."

CMHC funds available

Thousands of disabled Canadians are able to live independently in the community as a result of federal government initiatives which make housing accessible for them. Each year, the government, through its housing agency, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, provides funds to assist the disabled in renovating existing housing or providing new units specially designed to meet their needs.

The Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP) provides funds to assist in modifying a home to improve accessibility for the disabled. The funds can be used to cover the cost of materials, labour, legal fees, financing costs, building plans and permits.

Eligible applicants can

Report from Ottawa

With Bill Scott, MP

receive up to $10,000, including a forgivable loan of up to $5,000. The level of assistance is based on the income level of the applicant.

Landlords can also qualify for up to $5,000 to assist in modifying each self-contained unit and up to $2,500 for each bed unit for the disabled. Landlords who receive assistance are required to keep the rents within a certain limit for five years following completion of the project.

In 1989, CMHC helped to renovate 2,723 dwellings for the disabled at a cost to the taxpayer of approximately $10 million in forgivable loans. RRAP is available in all provinces and is funded jointly with the provincial government in Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Quebec.

The federal government also provides housing for the disabled through its social housing programs. Approximately 15 percent of units in existing public non-profit housing projects are utilized by the disabled and a minimum of five percent of units in all new federally assisted projects must be designated as accessible for the physically handicapped.

Lindsay United Church Presbyterial held at Peniel

On February 6, 1991, the Executive Meeting of Lindsay Presbyterial was held at Peniel United Church. President Carol Thompson welcomed all and opened the meeting with a poem, "Touches", followed by prayer. Yvonne Chambers, president of Peniel U.C.W. extended a warm welcome. Grace Sisson conducted an inspiring worship based on the 23rd Psalm. With Jean Jones at the piano, the hymn, "The King of Love My Shepherd is", was sung. Grace read an interest-meditation, "The Basque Sheepherder", followed by prayer.

The usual business followed with introductions, regrets, and acceptance of the minutes of the October 17, 1990 meeting. Details of plans and duties for the Annual Meeting to be held in Bobcaygeon on March 6, 1991, were finalized. The guest speaker for this event is Reverend Kwang Il Lee, missionary from Korea. Shirley Reesor introduced several new books on environment and devotionals. Leola English, Nora Bagshaw and Jean Gorrill made a presentation, "Gospel, Culture, Media". This was in the form of discussion groups and a humorous but thought provoking skit.

Bag lunches, with beverage provided by the Peniel ladies, were enjoyed and time was available for all to browse at the book table.

Florence Harrison presented the proposed 1991 budget. Joyce Jones made an appeal for individuals to fill some offices which are still vacant. She was able to announce that, due to Miss Vina Neal's ailing health, Mrs. Helen McIntyre will take over the "In Memoriam" book. Olive Nye reported on the progress of the Shelter for Abused Women and had available the little donation boxes that are placed in stores. Florence Harrison mentioned that she hopes soon to take used stamps and used eye glasses to Toronto. Olive Rogers checked on the need for sending reports to additional papers. Grace Sisson explained the process involved in making a member a life member. Mary Winterbottom read a couple of clippings dealing with the abuse of drugs and alcohol. Pat Burley, Youth Convenor, reported that give youths from their church had attended TocAlpha Conference and had enjoyed it thoroughly. Correspondence consisted mostly of thank you letters from Organizations to which Presbyterial had made donations.

The Spring Rallies are: Region 1 - May 9 at Greenbank; Region 3 - April 24 at Cameron; Region 4 - May 1 at Powles' Corner. Next Executive is June 12 at Coboconk. Hilda Smith expressed Courtesies and Carol closed the meeting with prayer.

International Women's Day to to be marked locally

Women around the world will gather on Friday, March 8, 1991 to celebrate International Women's Day. Locally, women (and their children) of Haliburton County are invited to the Dysart Community Centre (above the Haliburton Arena), Friday, March 8, 1991, 6:30 - 9:30 p.m. to celebrate the spirit of women around the world. The 1991 theme, "The Seasons of Our Lives", was selected to respect and honour the strengths of women of all ages. The event has been organized by the Haliburton County Women's Committee. This committee organized last year's successful celebration where more than 65 women and children attended.

The evening will begin with a pot-luck dinner. After dinner, the evening will proceed with entertainment by "Precious Friends", Dianne Hagerman and Janice Benoit, a local two-some who spread laughter and joy whenever they sing. Following Janice and Dianne, a lively and participating storytelling even will illustrate "the seasons of our lives."

All women and children of Haliburton County of all ages are invited to attend this special event. The evening events are free, but each woman is asked to bring a favorite dish to share for the pot-luck feast, and also her own plate, cup and cutlery. Women are encouraged to car pool when possible.

International Women's Day has been celebrated for over a century to mark the anniversary of the first protest march (March 8, 1857, New York) against the terrible working conditions for women textile and garment workers. The song "Bread and Roses" was written in 1912 and has become a common theme song for the day. Many people recognize the power of the third verse of this song, even today 80 years later: "As we come marching, marching, unnumbered women dead, / Go crying through our singing, their ancient cry for bread. / Small art and love and beauty their drudging spirits knew / Yes, it is bread we fight for, but we fight for roses, too." Even though women in Canada no longer struggle to gain the right to vote, March 8 is a day to celebrate women's life accomplishments and to recognize the struggles still remaining for women internationally.

The event is organized by the Haliburton County Women's Committee, an open committee of women which plans events of particular interest to women of the County. The members of the committee hope that ideas will be generated at this event for ongoing projects that will benefit the whole community. For further information regarding this year's International Women's Day Celebration, or the Haliburton Women's Committee, please contact the Women's Safety Network at (705) 457-3355.

Tenants-Landlords

We want your views on Rent Control

You can help the Ontario Government develop a new rent control law by letting us know your views.

Because both tenants and landlords want to settle the rent control issue without delay, we want to have a rent control law in place within a year.

To help us do that, we will meet with tenant and landlord associations, municipalities and other interested groups across the province.

But most important, we want to hear from you.

Here's how you can make your views known:

- 1 A newsletter summary of the main rent control issues will be delivered to most apartments during the next few days. It gives you a way to get back to the government with your views. If you don't get one, just tell us.
- 2 You can obtain the full discussion paper on rent control. Free. We welcome your written comments and suggestions.
- 3 You can attend public meetings which will be held in Barrie, Etobicoke, London, Ottawa, Toronto, Sudbury and Windsor throughout March. If you wish to speak, please call the number below. (This opportunity will obviously be limited by space and time.)

Also when the proposed rent control law is introduced, you may appear before a legislative committee to make your views known.

We would like to hear from you by April 5, please.

Finding the big ones

While some anglers are having trouble finding the fish, these two youngsters seem have little difficulty in locating the lunkers. Justin Rowden, left, came home with lake trout weighing in at eight-and-a-half and three pounds. Justin Bull's rainbow trout, right, tipped the scales at four pounds. Both fisherman are tight lipped about the locations where the fish were caught.

BAHA'I FAITH

"God's purpose is none other than to usher in, in ways He alone can bring about, and the full significance of which He alone can fathom, the Great, the Golden Age of a long-divided, a long-afflicted humanity. Its present state, indeed even its immediate future is dark, distressingly dark. Its distant future, however, is radiant, gloriously radiant--so radiant that no eye can visualize it."

Scientists cannot solve all of our problems

"Don't worry, they'll find an answer," is a common response to a news report on some impending disaster. "They" of course, refers to scientists and the widespread faith in them is easy to understand. We are surrounded by a technological cornucopia that attests to their success while the media regularly announce "breakthroughs" that promise to make life better.

The achievements of science and technology are remarkable. My father's cure from cancer and the effective treatment of my father-in-law's heart disease filled me with gratitude for the advances in medical science. I couldn't do what I do without a telephone, fax or laptop computer. And there will be more miracles from science in the future. But history amply shows that every technology, however powerful and beneficent, also has costs, side effects that cannot be anticipated because our knowledge of the world is so limited and fragmentary.

Nevertheless, the belief that scientists can solve all problems extends to the environment as well.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

Consider the threat of global warming through the build up of greenhouse gases like carbon dioxide. The United States has vigorously opposed setting targets for carbon dioxide reduction and looks instead to new technological solutions that will allow continued increases in greenhouse gases and protection of the biosphere. Thus, a recent workshop sponsored by the prestigious US National Academy of Sciences recommended starting a two year study of major ways to manipulate the atmosphere.

One idea being studied was advanced by California scientist, John Martin. he suggests that spreading massive amounts of iron across the Antarctic Ocean will fertilize the iron deficient waters and stimulate huge algal blooms, which can remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. To support his scheme, Martin showed that added iron stimulated a tenfold increase in algal growth in bottles of Antarctic water.

Scientists learn by separating a phenomenon from everything else to focus on it alone. They gain insights into the properties of isolated fragments of nature but little ability to predict the consequences of applying the information gained. Iron added to a bottle may stimulate algae to grow, but it is absurd to expect such a simple cause-effect consequence from spreading iron over the Antarctic Ocean!

Many schemes for atmospheric modification are in the same class as Martin's in scale and hubris. California Dwain Spencer proposes towing hug grids along the ocean to "farm" seaweed. A million square miles of ocean surface, he calculates, could grow enough plants to remove a billion tons of carbon dioxide a year.

Not more science--more will

Then the plants can be harvested and allowed to ferment. The methane produced could be used as fuel while the CO₂ would be trapped. On the basis of a Japanese report that CO₂ near deep sea vents liquefies and behaves like a solid, Spencer suggests waste carbon dioxide could be liquefied and dumped on to the ocean floor.

It has been proposed that as global temperature increases, the oceans could be covered with white polystyrene balls or all house rooftops painted white to reflect solar energy back out into space.

Another idea is to launch a series of satellites that will spread an immense sheet of thin film in outer space and cast a shadow over part of the earth to cool it down. An area equivalent to "only" to two per cent of the earth's surface, it is estimated, would compensate for an increase of twice as much carbon dioxide.

Columbia University geochemist Wallace Broecker points out that volcanic eruptions release sulfur dioxide, which reflects sunlight. Broecker calculates that warming due to a doubling in CO₂ levels could be cancelled out by spreading 35 million tons of sulfur dioxide from a fleet of several hundred jumbo jets working around the clock. Unfortunately, sulfur dioxide causes acid rain, but perhaps another fleet of planes could spray a neutralizing agent into the air and so technology would run amok.

The ecological consequences of the proposed technological "solutions" to atmospheric change cannot be predicted, but we can say with full confidence there will be enormous, unexpected results that could be as destructive as the condition being treated. But the cause of atmospheric change, for example, is obvious—it is us, our numbers, our technology, our lifestyles.

And the safest, easiest "answer" is equally clear: We have to reduce output of the offending molecules. We don't need more science, only political will.

Special guests enjoy resident's family dinner

February 1, 1991 the Residents' Family Dinner was held in the auditorium. There were one hundred and fifteen residents and guests seated for dinner. Special guests were: Carol Puffer, Warden of Haliburton County and Bern Berry of Hyland Crest Committee, who were introduced by Rheta Jones, Administrator of Hyland Crest. The tables were beautifully decorated with a Valentine theme of hearts, balloons, etc. Most of the decorations were made by residents and volunteers.

Llyn Shirley, Food Services Supervisor, and her staff served a delicious dinner. After the dinner we were entertained by Bill Gliddon and Glenda Burke. Mr. Gliddon had put together a beautiful program of music. Glenda sang a variety of songs. For example, "The Sound of Music". Bill played a medley of beautiful old waltzes as well as a duet with Glenda. The musicians were introduced by Doris Robertson, Activities Director. The whole evening was put together by Doris.

Two of the most competent health care helpers (so they said) made my bed this morning, thank you girls.

Saturday at 4 p.m. Marion Fisher came to read to us for an hour. One book is finished and Marion has read another short book which we liked and is starting another. Saturday we had just nicely started reading when I had visitors. I was happy to see my niece Emily LaRue, her daughter Chantal and first grandson Chase who was only eight weeks old. He is my great, great nephew.

Chapel service Sunday evening was conducted by Reverend John Burgess with Alice Jones playing the organ. We thank them sincerely.

Earlier in the afternoon my sister May Cameron and her daughter Jacqueline Yateman from Peterborough came and they took me out for dinner. I will never be able to thank them enough.

Monday we had Bible study. Evelyn Coleman discussed the 6th and last Mary with us, Mary Magdalene. Many thanks Evelyn.

Senior League

Following Bible Study, the Residents' Council met in the auditorium. Several problems were discussed and Rheta Jones, Administrator, gave a report on activities in her department including the raising of a new flag to replace the old one that day. Llyn Shirley also gave a report. We had an election of the executive for Residents' Council and the former executives were returned by acclamation.

Monday evening Ruth Rice and Ena Marion showed movies. They were "Benji - Incident at Hawk's Mill", and "Horse Drawn Magic". Thank you Ruth and Ena, we do appreciate it.

Tuesday morning Father Brian Parker held a Communion Chapel Service. Thank you Father Parker.

Tuesday afternoon we went for a bus ride. The weather was very warm but cloudy. Terry Barnum drove the bus. He has volunteered to drive while Doris is away if needed. We drove to Ingoldsby, across to Lochlin, up to Donald, back to Kinmount, and finally to Kawartha Dairy for ice cream cones and home. The residents said they enjoyed the drive. Doris manned the speaker to acquaint us with the area we covered.

Wednesday afternoon Pearl Lyle had a visit from a lady Pearl had taught in school, Mrs. Ruby Schell, she's is 88 years old and Pearl is 93 years old.

Doris Robertson entered St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday to have foot surgery. We all wish you a complete and successful recovery.

Thursday the ladies of Maple Lake Anglican Church provided the lunch for our Tea Party. The lunch was nicely served by Isabell Gibbs, Nellie Dawson, Marg Sisson, Nellie Thompson, Lottie Ruttan, Geraldine Harrison, Irene Davies, Jean Randall and a gentleman, Don Sisson. The residents that the ladies and Don sincerely for the lovely afternoon.

Monday and Wednesday, Marion Fisher came to read for us. We enjoy the reading very much.

Trio Vivant will perform at Haliburton Legion

One of Canada's most talented and acclaimed concert ensembles, Catherine Wilson's Trio Vivant, has been invited to perform in Haliburton at the Legion Hall on Sunday, February 24, 1991. Concert time is 7:30 p.m.

Founded by concert pianist/composer Catherine Wilson, the Trio has earned an enthusiastic following across Canada and the United States for its amazing diversity of repertoire. Equally adept with the music of Broadway as it is with that of J.S. Bach, the trio's program spans three centuries of composition. It includes music of the great classical masters, to the rhythms of ragtime, to popular music from Gershwin to the present, as well as Catherine Wilson's own compositions.

Wilson earned her Bachelor of Music Degree in Performance at the University of Toronto and went on to obtain a Masters in Piano Performance Degree at the University of Michigan the following year. Over the past few years she has charmed and dazzled audiences as a piano soloist; with her piano duo partner John Arpin (The Arpin and Wilson Duo) in both recordings and the concert stage; and as pianist and leader of her Trio, in stage, television, radio and recording appearances. The Trio's CD release on the Fanfare/Pro Arte label "Palm Court Pleasures" has become a favourite on CBC programs, and a fast seller in record stores in both Canada and the United States. The trio's second CD "Palm Court Encores" with Jubal Records, will be available in record stores by mid 1991. "Rags to Riches", an earlier Fanfare/Pro Arte release, with the Arpin and Wilson Duo is a smash success on both sides of the border. As a composer, Catherine has created and performed incidental music for three seasons of the popular CBC series "The Scales Of Justice". Her hauntingly beautiful "Sackville Street Ballad" was premiered with symphony orchestra in 1989, with Wilson as soloist with the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra. A recording project with Wilson as soloist, plus a third trio recording in June 1991, are on the upcoming agenda with Jubal Records.

Violinist Marie Berard has studied at the Conservatoire du Musique du Quebec, the Banff School of Fine Arts, The National Youth Orchestra of Canada, and at the University of Toronto. She was a founding member of the Amadeus Ensemble of Toronto, and first violin with the Toronto Symphony. Currently she is assistant concertmaster of the Canadian Opera Company Orchestra.

Cellist Amanda Forsyth graduated in 1989 with a Bachelor of Music Degree from the Juilliard School in New York where she studied with Harvey Shapiro, and where she was principal cellist of The Juilliard Orchestra. Her other teachers include Eric Wilson, Ronald Leonard and Gary Hoffman. While studying in London, England with William Pleeth, she participated in a BBC television master class with Jacqueline DuPre. During the summers of 1989 and 1990, Forsyth was principal cellist of The Los Angeles Philharmonic Institute Orchestra, and she performed at The Hollywood Bowl and Royce Hall in chamber music concerts with cellist Lynn Harrell. She can frequently be heard on CBC Radio and Arts National, and she is currently a member of the Toronto Symphony.
